IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. A. B. Ferguson, who passed away seventeen years ago today, April 17, 1948.
Seventeen long and lonely years ago today,
Dear Mother, you quietly slipped away,
To rest in the arms of Jesus We will never forget that day.
Some may think we have forgotten you,
When they see us smile.
But they little know the sorrow, That we suffer all the while.
No one knows our sorrow,
A few have seen us weep,
But the way our hearts ache For you, Dear Mother, and wish You were here to help to guide us,
Along as you always did.
All we can do now, Dear Mother, Is remember the lesson you taught us, and try to follow you.
For we know you are safe with Jesus, where no harm can reach you.
And waiting to greet us when we get there.
As we go to your grave and place flowers, we breathe a prayer.
That some day we will meet you Where there will always be happiness.
Sadly missed by children. 4-8-1p

The Pastor Speaks

Rev. Thomas Waddill

Two weeks ago in this column we emphasized the fact that Christianity is a joyful religion that is, it produces joy in its adherents. What a wonderful truth this is! The Christian's joy knows no bounds as he contemplates the forgiveness of sins which he has experienced through his faith in Jesus Christ.

On the other hand we would be refusing to face reality if we did not acknowledge that "there are times in the lives of all of us when this joy leaves us and eludes our grasp. The Psalmist has expressed the agony of the soul in this situation: 'As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God? My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?"

Death, tragedy, failure, and disappointment often cause us to feel that God is afar off or that He has actually forsaken us. How one feel joy if God has forsaken him? This is a natural experience, even the greatest of Christians have experienced it. We should not be ashamed of them but rather friends, our pastor, or church leaders. Part of the purpose of the church fellowship is to undergird one another in times like this.

Though it may be natural for us to feel that God is far off it certainly is not pleasant. It is not a feeling which we would want to nourish and hold on to. How can we get rid of it? Having admitted that we feel this way and recognizing that it is not an abnormal experience for the Christian, we can do something about it.

The same Psalmist said, 'Hope thou in God!' Remembering our previous experiences with God, focusing our thoughts on His nature as revealed in His word can help convince us that God is near. The scriptures are full of passages which will assure us of the constancy of God and His love for us. 'For neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.'

For Christians through nineteen centuries these words have replaced dispair with gladness. The Bible and prayer are a powerful antidote to the posison of doubt that so often creeps into our hearts.

The Christian fellowship which we call the Church has many tasks. One of these is to strengthen the weak. When one member is weak others are strong and in sharing their strength all are strengthened. God does not leave us alone but provides many helps. If we hope in God we shall not be ashamed and He will soon "restore unto us the joy of our salvation.'

The One Cross

Lesson for April 11, 1965

It was nothing unusual for three crosses to stand on the place called The Skull. That was where crucifixions always took place. Hymns have prettified it, but the ugly fact is that it was the city dump, and criminals executed their lurid deaths there, before their bodies were thrown into a common ditch and hastily covered up to keep the jackals out. So three crosses, not even an unheard-of sight. Yet how different were the three that April afternoon! Two were hanging there who were real criminals — only one knew he deserved it. Nothing to him, and the other did not. But the third cross held a man who by all his life had done no wrong, a man whose hand had never been laid on any other man in anger but always in blessing.

Many crosses

To this day all over the world when Christian people say 'the cross' they instinctively make the central cross and the Man upon it. The cross means, as it ought to mean, the cross of Christ. That form of capital punishment has long since been outdoned; we see no more such cruel sights upon our highways. The memory of the countless crosses erected by the Romans has since vanished; yet that one cross remains, in song and story and prayers.

But on the other hand, is it not true that there are today many crosses, — crosses to look at, crosses of the mind and dspirit? They are to be found on the counter of every jewelry store — and it does not prove that the jeweler is a religious man or a Christian. Crosses are used for ornaments on expensive gowns. They are used to decorate the interior of churches, yet there the minister is not always asked, but the architect is. How many crosses should we have, and where? This is not the true Cross; it was never an ornament.

Christians come nearer the meaning of the one cross when they speak or sing of the 'cross of grief or pain;" or sorrows, suffering or death, or of lighter things such as disappointments and frustrations, as "crosses." Yet — none of these things can be called the One Cross.

The true Cross

Though the Christian ages, there has been a kind of curiosity-seeking effort to find the "true cross," that is to say the actual wooden cross upon which Jesus died. The truth of the cross is not in wood, it is in the soul. And there are two meanings of the cross above all: tragedy and triumph. The Cross stands for the defeat of the Son of God. It is the tragedy of "but you would not" when Jesus would have gathered all men to him. It is the tragedy of man's saying No, to the God of love. Yet in the true cross there is also triumph. It is the triumph of the God who in love refuses to take No for a final answer, the triumph of divine love over human stupidity, envy and hate. Christians have wept over the cross but they have never been ashamed of it.

The True Cross

It would be a study worth making to think out the meaning of the three crosses on Calvary; each of them has a different meaning. But let us only think of that cross which stood at the center there, and has been at the center of man's heart ever since, wherever men have found the way of God. No other cross than this has revealed the love of God so fully, so movingly, so simply. No other cross has brought God and man together. In no other sign or symbol, in no other reality, is there the harmony, the atonement, between the holy God and unholy man.
